H.K. TEACHERS ASSOCN.

Rev. Fr. Byrne's Talk

The Rev. Fr. G. Byrne spoke before members of the Hong Kong Teachers' Association yesterday at Ricci Hall. It was scheduled to be a lecture, but Fr. Byrne said that he would make it more of a discussion and welcome heckling during his talk, and encouraged his listeners to ask him any questions they desired.

As he was asked to speak to the history section of the association he outlined the preparation of students before entering the University.

The average man, he said, did not know how to read a newspaper properly, and students should be taught how to understand political situations, which was one angle of vision.

He enlarged on the methods of presentation of history. The subject, in his school days, was taught only for examination purposes, which was an appalling state of affairs.

An historical background was needed for the reading of political news, and prejudices should be laid aside at the time. He gave as an illustration the recent talk he had with His Excellency, the Governor. They were discussing books and he was asked if he had read Hackett's, King Henry VIII. He replied that he had not, and the Governor graciously offered to lend him the book.

He also had a book which His Excellency wanted to read. Sir Andrew informed him that he did not know anything about the author, whereupon Fr. Byrne said that he did. The author was his cousin, and he had not bothered to read any of his books, because he always remembered him as a young fellow in school.

Fr. Byrne deplored the lack of illustrated books for the Eastern child. It was a crying want that books for the Chinese were not illustrated with pictures depicting the things that would be easily understood by the Chinese. History books of the Occident had illustrations of all the things familiar to their children. Pictures in books always kept the student interested.

He concluded by saying that the industrial revolution tended to lose the foundations of the higher type of culture. A common labourer might be surrounded with luxuries of present day civilization, but it did not mean that he was a cultured person.

Scotland's Patron Saint

Brilliant Function At Peninsula Hotel

CHIEFTAIN'S SPEECH

Governor And Lady Caldecott Attend

In traditional manner amid time-honoured ceremonial, Hong Kong Scots foregathered in large numbers at the Peninsula Hotel last night to do honour to their patron saint. It was the occasion of St. Andrew's Ball, the Colony's leading social event of the season. Tartans mingled with tuxedos, and gorgeous evening creations of the ladies against a colourful background of clan shields and thistle together formed a brilliant spectacle so rarely witnessed here.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Andrew Caldecott, and Lady Caldecott attended, this being their first participation at St. Andrew's Ball.

In the course of his speech during dinner, the Chieftain of the Hong Kong St. Andrew's Society (Mr. R. M. McLeay) said that the Society was the oldest in Hong Kong having been formed in 1831. "We pride ourselves that the annual celebration of the festival of St. Andrew is the social event of the season."

EFFECTIVE DECORATIONS
The decorations at the hotel entrance and in the Rose Room and Roof Garden were executed by Mr. Andy Duncan and were very effective. It will be remembered by many that his father, Mr. George Duncan, M.B.E., for several years handled the decorations until his retirement last year.

At the hotel entrance there was a life size figure of the patron saint, bearing a cross, in which the figure was effective illuminated.

Behind the official dais in the Rose Room was hung the arms of Stewart of Appin, the clan of the Chieftain. This was draped in tartan and evergreen and a lighted thistle.

Is The Unbaptised Child Damned?

BY
"Scrutator"

The sad necessity which has brought this question before the public mind in recent weeks is deserving of an unbiased answer. Certain religious communions answer this question in the affirmative, certain others, while refusing to commit such an intellectual atrocity, declare that the baptism of children has a direct influence upon them. Let us examine the facts concerning the situation.

Baptism so far as the modern world is concerned, originated not as some imagine with Jesus of Nazareth, but with John, the son of an aged priest called Zacharias. At the time when John appeared, the Hebrew nation had resigned itself to living upon its past, believing that in the ancient prophecies the Almighty had spoken His last word, but John's truth was so commanding that he broke the moral and spiritual apathy of his day. This man not only brought a religious message, he practised a religious rite which made a strong impression on the minds of his contemporaries, even upon the mind of one, Jesus of Nazareth.

John required of those who accepted his teaching of repentance that they should be immersed in him in waters of the river Jordan, beside which he lived, illustrating, thus symbolically, the cleansing which they professed to have received through repentance. From his performance of this then novel and mysterious rite he became known as John 'the Baptiser,' John, 'the dipper.'

There is no single instance in the New Testament of a child undergoing baptism, nor of Jesus instructing that children should be baptised. Baptism to the mind of Christ appears simply as a valuable rite symbolising the inward cleansing of man through repentance. The practice of child baptism originated in the early church, and even there it was slow to be accepted and was certainly never insisted upon by the Church Fathers.

OPINIONS

Tertullian, who is amongst the few early Christian writers who mention it at all, writes: "according to the circumstances and temper and even age of each (individual) is the delay of baptism more profitable, yet especially in the case of little children. For where is the need of involving sponsors also in danger? ... The Lord says, indeed, Forbid them not to come to me. Let them come when they have learned, when they are taught where they are coming; let them become Christians when they are able to know Christ. Why does an age which is innocent hasten to the remission of sins? There will be more caution used in worldly matters, so that one who is not trusted with earthly substance is trusted with divine."

Obviously Tertullian is harking back to the mind of Christ, that baptism is only symbolic of the remission of sins. Justin also shares this view of baptism and writes: "As many as are persuaded and believe that the things are true which are taught by us, (the Church) and said to be true, and promise to live accordingly—they are taught to pray and to ask of God with fasting forgiveness of their former sins, and we pray and fast together with them. Then they are brought by us to a place where there is water, and born again with a new birth even as we ourselves were born again. For in the name of God the Father and the Lord of the universe, and of our Saviour, Jesus Christ; and the Holy Spirit do they then receive the washing in water. ... And this washing is called Enlightenment, because those who learn these things have their understanding enlightened."

Surely this statement denies the argued necessity of baptism for infants for the remission of sins, to make them fit for heaven. The teaching also of the Didache concerning baptism is applicable only to adults.

PRACTICE AND BELIEF

The growth of the practice of infant baptism and the belief in the necessity of it, is contemporaneous with the development of the conception of original sin, which is not a specifically Christian doctrine, and was never taught by Christ.

Baptism is indeed utterly invalid as the verbal designation of the rite of sprinkling an infant with water, christening is the more correct term. The christening of children then is a solemn ceremony wherein the believing Christian in the presence of fellow-believers declares with gratitude that he recognises God as the source of all life, and in particular as the source of the life of his own child. It is a witness to the fact that all children are members of His family, any more than it is by our own choice or act that we are members of His family, any more than it is by our own choice or act that we are members of a human family; it is a symbolic representation of Jesus when he said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not."

So far as the part of the parent is concerned, and of the sponsors if any, the rite is symbolic and public recognition by them of this fact, and a public declaration by them, as parents, and as members of a Christian fellowship, that they accept their Christian responsibility towards the new life which has come into the world. As such it has an indirect influence upon the little child, but indirect only, in the sense that if its parents and if Christian society fulfil the responsibilities which they have professed as theirs, the child will benefit from their Christian influence, fellowship, and upbringing. Infants can take no vows upon themselves, and no one has any moral or spiritual right to encumber themselves with what are purely personal and individual responsibilities, to attempt to do so is just so much mummery; nor does christening, even when it is called the sacrament of baptism, convey any miraculous grace to the child, which unbaptised children are without, such supply of grace and spiritual power is the divine inheritance of every child born into the world, since it is not the will of our Father in heaven that one of them should perish.

Baptised or unbaptised, little children are the children of God and the direct recipients of His love and care so far as parents and a sub-Christian society permit that love to be manifested.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LESSON SERMON

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Hong Kong

Subject, Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, denounced.

The subject of the Lesson Sermon in all Christian Science Churches to-morrow, November 29, will be "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, denounced."

The Golden Text will be, "It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." (Matthew 4:10).

Among others, the following citations from the Bible will be read: "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armour of God; that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle, not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." (Ephesians 6:10-17).

The Lesson Sermon will also include the following passages from the Christian Science Textbook, "Science and Health with key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy:

"Let neither fear nor doubt overshadow your clear sense and calm trust; that the recognition of life harmonious—as life eternally is—can destroy any painful sense of or belief in, that which life is not. Adhere to the divine Principle of Christian Science and follow the behests of God, abiding steadfastly in Wisdom, Truth, and Love. In the Science of Mind, you will soon ascertain that error cannot destroy error. You will also learn that in Science there is no transfer of evil suggestions from one mortal to another, for there is but one Mind, and this ever-present omnipotent Mind is reflected by man and governs the entire universe. Pages 485-60).

Some who attended the Requiem Mass for Rev. D. Finn, S. J., in the Catholic Cathedral on Thursday expressed surprise at the presence of a catafalque, and at the blessings and incensations which were given at it as if the body were present.

This is in accordance with the usual Catholic custom, and follows from the fact that that whole ceremony and all the prayers that are said have reference to the soul and not to the body of the dead person. The catafalque is simply the visible reminder of the one who is dead, and none of the prayers said beside it have any reference to the body, but all are for the soul. A Catholic Requiem Mass therefore cannot be correctly regarded as a "Memorial Service" alone, for while it does recall the memory of the dead person, it regards him as still living and still capable of receiving the assistance of the prayers of his friends.

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH ROME

There are constant rumours in the press of the establishment of relations with the Vatican on the part of such nations as China, Japan and the United States. The reason for such rumours is the fact that now it is the custom rather than the exception for nations to have diplomatic relations with the Holy See, the obvious reason being the considerable number of Catholics that there are in each nation. At the present time there are thirty-five foreign envoys at the Vatican. These include twelve ambassadors and twenty-three ministers plenipotentiary. Guatemala was the last to resume diplomatic relations, which had been interrupted for some years.

THEATRICALS IN CATHOLIC SCHOOLS

The high level of the theatrical performance which was part of the prize-giving at St. Mary's School, Kowloon, on Thursday, calls attention to the fact of the prominent part that have always been given to theatricals in education in Catholic schools. This comes from the fact that the development of theatrical displays from the early centuries of the Christian era was largely promoted by the Church, and that their value to the players as well as to the audience was appreciated by educators. An interesting feature of the theatricals in modern Catholic schools is the attention given to production and lighting. St. Mary's School has a fine tradition in this respect, and it has been well maintained in the present performance.

The following are the forthcoming services at the Catholic Cathedral, Caine Road:

November 29th—First Sunday in Advent

Morning services:—

1st Mass at 6

2nd Mass at 8 with sermon in Chinese

3rd Mass at 10.30 with sermon in English

December 3rd.—St. Francis Xavier.

December 4th.—First Friday of the Month

General Communion in honour of the Sacred Heart of Jesus at 7 o'clock Mass.

During all the week, every evening, at 5.30 there is the Novena in honour of the Immaculate Conception.

On week days Mass at 6 and 7.30. Confessions morning and evening.

CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP MEETING

Further Talk On The New Testament

At the weekly meeting of the Christian Fellowship, the Rev. Mackenzie Dow continued his talk on the New Testament and dealt this time with those books which had not been included in the Authorized and New Versions. Most of these books, the speaker said, were of old Hebrew or early Christian origins.

After giving further enlightenment as to the source of these and other books, including the writings of several early Christians who were disciples of St. Peter in Rome, the speaker pointed out that a few of these writings did not prove themselves worthy of inclusion and so were left out when the work on the Authorized and New Versions were being carried out.

CATHOLIC NEWS AND NOTES

ADVENT

To-morrow is the first Sunday of Advent. With this day the Church begins a new year. There are always four Sundays in Advent, the first of them being the Sunday nearest to St. Andrew's Day. The period is intended as a time of preparation for the feast of Christmas, which commemorates the birth of Christ. The name comes from the Latin word for approach.

Some who attended the Requiem Mass for Rev. D. Finn, S. J., in the Catholic Cathedral on Thursday expressed surprise at the presence of a catafalque, and at the blessings and incensations which were given at it as if the body were present.

CHALLENGE TO FASCISM

Stalin's Speech In Moscow

Moscow, Nov. 25.
A bold challenge to Fascism was made to-day by M. Joseph Stalin, President of the Soviet Executive Committee, during a three-hour speech at the opening of the All-Union Congress. He described the new constitution which gives the citizens of Russia the right to vote and which the Congress is to discuss and adopt at its present session.
This new constitution, said M. Stalin, was an indictment of Fascism and would inspire all civilised people fighting for democracy against Fascist barbarism.
The sole amendment he suggested to the draft of the text was the inclusion of plans of organisation of a new commissariat for military industries which he urged, should be made the greatest military machine in the world.
He severely criticised those wanting to deprive priests and former White Guards of suffrage and maintained the Soviet Union was not afraid of any groups, since its former opponents had been rendered harmless.

DISTINGUISHING FEATURES

The draft constitution, M. Stalin continued, was the expression of already existing conditions, guaranteeing workers work, education and rest. This distinguished it from bourgeois constitutions since these latter only declared a worker's rights without providing for their realisation.
The Socialist Millennium had already come, he said, because all landlords and capitalists had their estates expropriated and the exploitation of man by man had been abolished.
Over 2,000 delegates, representing 160 nationalities, including Cossacks, Tartars, Eskimos, Gypsies and Turcomans, heard the speech, which was broadcast throughout Russia.
When M. Stalin rose to address the delegates he was given a tremendous ovation, which continued for 20 minutes.—

NOBEL PEACE PRIZE

Award Leads To Criticism

Stockholm, Nov. 25.
The surprising decision of the Oslo Nobel Prize Commission to award the Nobel Peace Prize to Herr von Ossietsky is characterised by the Swedish press as factless, the fact being stressed that the decision to award the prize rests exclusively with the Nobel Prize Committee, appointed by the Norwegian Parliament.
The eldest living relative of the prize donor, Ludwig Nobel, issued the following statement:
"I share the opinion of the President of Parliament, Hambro, that it is unfortunate that the Nobel Peace Prize should be made use of as political gesture, or to stir up ill feeling. Nothing could be farther from the wishes of Alfred Nobel, the name of the prize itself being sufficient proof of the fact. I have no desire to comment on the present decision, but the prize should never be made cause for quarrel."

DUTCH COMMENT
Amsterdam, Nov. 25.
The best known Dutch paper, "Telegraaf," commenting on the Nobel Prize award to Karl von Ossietsky, stresses:
"This act of the Nobel Prize Committee will give rise to much disagreement. Most of those championing Ossietsky do so merely in order to strike a blow at the German Government, while the prize winner himself, who has not a single manuscript in the Library of the Nobel Institute, is of secondary importance. Many Dutch citizens will be of the opinion that the prize has been awarded to a man who has done nothing practical to further peace, and who has pursued a path which does not lead to the ideal of peace."

INSULT TO GERMANY
Berlin, Nov. 25.
The German Minister at Oslo, Norway, has expressed to the Norwegian Government the great surprise of the German Government regarding the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to the radical Herr von Ossietsky, just released from a German prison camp.
"It is understood the German Government reserves the right to draw its own conclusions from this award, while recognising the Norwegian Government as such is not directly concerned."

Moscow, Nov. 25.
Besides Sticking, the death sentences on two Russians, Leonenko and Kovalenko, were commuted to ten years imprisonment.
In the case of six other Russians, described as the main organisers in "criminal wrecking and subversive activities by the counter-revolutionary group," the death sentences were carried out.

THE BIG BROADCAST OF 1937

Lavishly produced, tuneful, sometimes madcap and always gay, and boasting a cast which includes the top names of radio and screen, Paramount's annual tribute to the air waves, "The Big Broadcast of 1937," which is showing at the Queen's Theatre and Alhambra Theatre simultaneously, is easily the outstanding production for this type of entertainment that has yet been filmed.

With Jack Benny in the stellar role, "The Big Broadcast of 1937" includes George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Benny Goodman and his Orchestra, Shirley Ross, Ray Milland, Frank Forest, Benny Fields, Leopold Stokowski and his Symphony a delightful melange of music, beauty and wit.

The story centers around Jack Benny, a radio station manager, and his attempts to keep everybody happy. Forest, a popular orchestra leader, is unhappy because Shirley Ross, an unknown announcer in an obscure station, is ribbing him. He demands that Benny do something about it. Benny arrives, Milland's press agent, lure her to New York on the promise of a big job. When she arrives, Milland is assigned to keep her amused but off the air. They fall in love.

Shirley discovers the trick and is furious. Gracie Allen sponsor of programme puts her on her programme to team with Forest. The team is an instant success. A big programme is engineered in which Forest proposes to Miss Ross and is accepted. Then all America is steamed up for a radio wedding in which the two are to be united. When the big moment comes, however, Shirley refuses to go through with it and flees. A frantic search is begun for her. Gracie, left alone in the studio, puts on a programme of her own ingenious contrivance which is one of the high spots in this hilarious comedy.

"The Big Broadcast of 1937" is Miss Ross' first major screen assignment. She is the possessor of an unusual clear sweet voice, is an exquisite dancer and has great personal charm and beauty. It is easy to predict big things for her in the near future.

LIVESTOCK EXHIBITION

Improved Rising Technique

Nanking Attracting thousands of farmers, a Livestock and Poultry Exhibition was held on Nov. 13 at Machunghen, Hsiaoqingwei Area in the suburbs of Nanking under the auspices of the Nanking Rural Improvement Commission. The first of its kind in the capital, it was intended to arouse the attention of the rural populace to the employment of improved methods for the raising of livestock and fowls.

No less than 300 heads of cattle and 40 fowls participated in the exhibition which was divided into five sections: cows, sheep, pigs, cocks and ducks. Snatching the laurels of the day, a curly yellow cow was proclaimed first among the farming beasts. She might well be called the "Nanking Cow" for she was the representation of beastly labour rendered to mankind in farming. Other first honours were won by a sheep, a pig, a cock and a duck, each being chosen by the jury as the best of their respective groups.

Alluring prizes were awarded to the owners of the winning cattle and fowls. These included farming implements and improved seeds.—Central News Agency.

"THE LAST OF THE MOHICANS"

Randolph Scott, Binnie Barnes and Henry Wilcoxon head one of the greatest cast of stars ever assembled on the screen in "The Last of the Mohicans." Hellance Pictures' film version of the immortal James Fenimore Cooper classic, which is now showing at the King's Theatre to-day.

Also featured in important roles in this unforgettable story of glorious adventure, heart-starring romance and thundering conflict for a nation yet unborn are Bruce Cabot, Heather Angel, Philip Reed, Robert Barrat, Hugh Buckler and Willard Robertson.

Breath-taking highlights of the picture are the defense of Fort William Henry against the onslaught of the French legions; Cora's death leap from the heights of "Lovers' Cliff"; the thrilling rescue of Hawkeye from the torture-stake of the savage Hurons; the barbaric war dance of the Indian tribes, and last but not least, the hand-to-hand tomahawk battle to the death between the renegade half-breed and "The Last of the Mohicans."

"SUZY"

"Suzy," the outstanding new screen attraction opening on Sunday at the Majestic Theatre, tells an electrifying story of an American chorus girl stranded in London at the outbreak of the World War and caught in the web of war-time espionage.

Jean Harlow is starred in the new production and has two of the screen's most popular leading men in Franchot Tone and Cary Grant. Different from any role in which Miss Harlow has ever appeared, it is one that she personally requested to do, and advance reports have it that the role is by far Miss Harlow's finest screen characterization.

A highlight of the picture is Miss Harlow's singing of "Did I Remember?" a new song written especially for her by the noted song-writing team of Harold Adamson and Walter Donaldson, and one destined to sweep the country as the year's most popular hit.

"THE STORY OF LOUIS PASTEUR"

Paul Muni comes to the screen of the Star Theatre to-day, in what is said to be his greatest film characterization, "The Story of Louis Pasteur," a Cosmopolitan production released by First National.

Muni portrays Louis Pasteur, the great French chemist and bacteriologist who contributed so much to science. The story, by Sheridan Gibney and Pierre Collings, centers about Pasteur's battle against ignorance and prejudice, to save life through sterilization and the use of vaccines against disease.

So bitter against him, and so powerful were the physicians who hated him, that they succeeded in having him banished from Paris. But Pasteur did not give up his fight against disease. He struggled on in a different part of France and lived to see his work recognized, finally and he himself acclaimed.

Josephine Hutchinson plays the part of his faithful wife who shared his exile and aided him in his experimental work. The romantic roles are carried out by Anita Louise, as the daughter of Pasteur, and Donald Woods, who portrays one of the few physicians who believed in the great chemist.

"Great Britain has always been characterized by its political genius and the admirable adaptability of its constitutions and its respect for the normal currents of evolution."—Dr. Lamas (Argentina).

WANCHAI INCIDENT PROBED

Doctor's Evidence
Heard In Camera

CHINESE PRESS ARTICLES CONTRADICTED

An echo of the Wanchai incident on October 24 when a Chinese girl fell to her death from the second floor verandah of No. 79 Jaffee Road was heard at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon when before Mr. K. Keen the death enquiry over Wong To, 17, was held. The following jury was empanelled:—Messrs. O. P. Remedios (foreman), W. J. Thompson and A. Alves.

The enquiry was conducted by Chief Detective-Inspector J. Murphy who in opening said he was instructed to contradict certain articles which have appeared in the local Chinese press regarding the facts which led to the incident. Extracts from the Si Si Yat Po and the Tai Kwong Yat Po were read to the court.

EVIDENCE IN CAMERA

The first witness called was Dr. D. A. Smith who said that on the date of the incident he was then Acting-Medical Officer of the Victoria Public Mortuary. At 10.30 a.m. on October 25 he conducted a post-mortem examination on the body of Wong To who was identified by Chung Kung and Li Ping, friends of the deceased. The rest of the evidence was heard in camera.

Mr. C. A. Bryan, surveyor of the Public Works Department next appeared in the witness box and produced copies of a plan which he made of the premises on October 23. The exhibit showed details of the flat on the second floor of No. 79 Jaffee Road as well as an enlarged detail of the balcony and block plan of the flat.

Sgt. T. Mackay, Police photographer, next produced enlargements of four photographs which he, on October 27, had taken as follows:—(1) from the verandah opposite, showing the verandah of No. 79 Jaffee Road; (2) the same verandah, with one window open; (3) from the street, showing the doorway and height of the building; and (4) from the eastern end of Jaffee Road, looking west.

AMAH HEARD

The next witness was a Chinese woman, Nei Hing, who said she was the amah of the deceased girl. She resided at 82 Jaffee Road but she had in her possession one of the two keys to the door of the deceased's flat. The other key was kept by Wong To herself.

On the date in question the deceased went out at 5 p.m. and did not return until after six o'clock. The amah told the court she heard her mistress calling her and when she entered the flat she saw a European sitting on the bed in the main room. Her mistress was in the inner room and she thought there was another man there with her as she saw some clothes on the floor. The witness was unable to clearly describe whether the first man she saw was a sailor or a soldier.

The witness said she did not go into her mistress's cubicle but she sat down at a table in the centre of the main room. She then heard the deceased make certain exclamations, after which her mistress dashed out of the room to the verandah. She was undressed and the first European made a movement to follow her. The man who was in the cubicle with her mistress then came out.

NOISE ON VERANDAH

The amah told the court that she heard a noise on the drying-stage outside and when she went out and looked over the balcony she saw the deceased lying on the street below. She then shouted for help. The two Europeans then ran out of the flat and she followed them down.

Asked whether any of the men were in court, the amah said she could not recognise them.

ANOTHER WITNESS

Evidence was next given by Cheung Sau-ying, a friend of the deceased, who told the court she lived opposite the flat where the incident occurred, at 84 Jaffee Road. At the time referred to she was standing on her verandah and saw the deceased climb on to the projecting platform. She thought deceased was trying to get into the next house when she saw one of the flower pots tilt and Wong To slipped to the street below. She saw a man in uniform behind the girl when she ran out to the verandah and asked how far behind the man was, witness

SUMMARY COURT

Wrongful Detention
Of A Car

JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF

Judgment for the plaintiff and costs was given by Mr. Justice Hayden at the Summary Court yesterday afternoon when the action was concluded in which Chan Hon Chuen, of 177, Sai Yeung Choi Street, claimed $150 from Wong Miu Sia, of 17, Bute Street, for the wrongful detention of an Austin seven motor car. Plaintiff also claimed $50 damages.

Mr. M. A. da Silva appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. D. McCallum was for the defendant.

The plaintiff purchased the car from Lo Wa-kai, a Police interpreter, for $85 on December 6 last. Immediately upon purchase, he took it to the Wei Sing garage for repairs. On January 6 last, he housed it at the Lee Man garage at the rate of $5 a month.

About a month later he went to his native village where he remained for 20 days. On his return to the Colony, he found that the garage had closed. Some time in March he found his car in the possession of the defendant. He sent a friend to see the defendant, and on a refusal to return the vehicle, he instructed a solicitor to write a letter demanding its return. On receiving no reply, he issued the writ for the action.

He had never authorised Wong Chung, the owner of the garage, to sell the car on his behalf, nor had he surrendered his license either to him or to anybody. He did not authorise anybody to report to the Traffic Office for the loss of the license or apply for a duplicate. Up to the present time he had been unable to trace the whereabouts of Wong. He had spent over $70 to repair the vehicle.

EUROPEAN AGAIN REMANDED

Case For Committal

J. C. Gardner made another appearance before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy yesterday, when he was formally remanded until December 1.

He was charged for the embezzlement of about $2000 from the Union Insurance Company.

At the last hearing Chief Detective Inspector J. Murphy informed his Worship that the case would be for committal, and that the Assistant Attorney General, Mr. E. H. Williams would conduct the case for the Crown.

ROAD WRECKERS REMANDED

Repairs Not Yet Completed

Chan Nam and Lam Hing appeared on remand before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday charged with digging telegraph cables from the roadway at Deep Water Bay.

Because they had not finished repairing the road at that point, Mr. Schofield again remanded them in police custody until Monday.

TRAFFIC SUMMONS

Lau To, 15, of No. 2 Stafford Road, Kowloon Tong, was brought before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for driving a car without a valid driving license at 5.45 p.m. on Stafford Road, on November 1. Lau Chan, 25, the owner of the car and an elder brother of the defendant was also summoned for allowing his young brother to drive the car.

Lance Sergeant Roberts prosecuted. The defendant was fined $15 and his elder brother $10.

said the distance was equal to three-quarters of the length of the court table.

After several more questions were put to the witness, she was asked regarding the identification parade which she attended at the Murray Barracks on November 18. She admitted that she was not fully sure that she recognised the man she pointed out.

The case was then adjourned to the afternoon of Monday, December 7.

QUEEN MARY HOSPITAL VICTIMIZED

Electric Wire
Stolen

Wong Yim, 38, an earth cooler working at the Queen Mary Hospital at Pokfulam Road, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday for the theft of three pounds of electric wire.

The complainant was Mr. A. Spary, of the Public Works Department, and Insp. Johnson prosecuted.

About 7.30 a.m., the day before yesterday, defendant was seen in the basement of the hospital by a Chinese watchman. Defendant was cutting some wire with a pen knife, and he had about a hundred feet by his side.

He was apprehended by the watchman and taken to the police station.

The value of the wire in his possession was $20, but the damage done amounted to another $30.

He was fined $50, or three weeks' imprisonment by Mr. Schofield, who also imposed a sentence of three months in gaol.

PINE WOOD

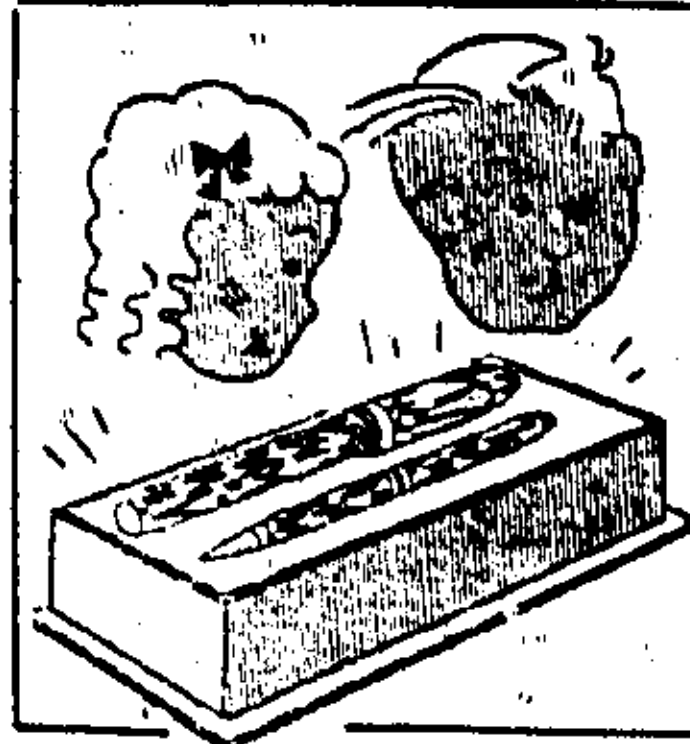

Chiu Tai, 45, a widow, was charged before Mr. E. H. Elmsworth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday for possession of 45 cabbies of pine wood valued at $10.

It was stated that a constable arrested the defendant at Customs' Path.

A fine of $12, with the alternative of a month's imprisonment was imposed.

MONEY THEFT

Leung Chuen, 36, unemployed, appeared before Mr. K. Keen at the Central Magistracy yesterday on a charge of having stolen $38 from Li Fat-po in Des Voeux Road opposite the Sincere Company store. Defendant pleaded guilty. Det-Sergeant Pilkington said that defendant extracted the money from complainant's jacket. Defendant, who is under police supervision and who had seven previous convictions, was sentenced to six months' hard labour.

Scotland's Patron Saint

SOCIETY'S CREST
Immediately inside the Roof Garden the crest of the Society, draped in tartan, and flanked by the dates 1881-1936, was suspended to the balcony. There was also the arms of the MacGregor clan.

In both the Roof Garden and the Rose Room were to be seen the arms of the various Scottish clans while there were also portraits of Burns and Scott and two scenic pictures, "The Buccleuch" and "The Hunted Fox."

THE HAGGIS
At supper, the haggis was piped in by Pipe-Major W. C. K. Mackie and was carried by Mr. K. A. Munro. The Barley Bree was carried by Mr. G. A. Stewart.

After all had partaken of a "wee dram," the Chieftain, proposing a toast to "The Pious and Immortal memory of St. Andrew," the Chieftain (Mr. McLay) said:—

Your Excellency.—On behalf of the Society I wish to extend to you and Lady Caldecott a very hearty welcome to this, your first St. Andrew's festival in Hong Kong. (Applause).

Your Excellencies, Ladies and Gentlemen.—Tradition dies hard, and it is one of the privileges of the Chieftain to address the assembled guests. In olden days words of wisdom and comments on current affairs fell from his lips, and I believe on one occasion he held the floor for 55 minutes, but alas I am no orator and as most of you have come to dance and not to listen to me speechmaking, I do not propose to detain you very long.

OLDEST SOCIETY
As a society we stand supreme, ours is the oldest society in the Colony, having been founded in the year 1881 and we take great pleasure in rubbing this in to kindred societies and seeing that they recognise our premier position.

As to our activities, our Charitable Acts are discreetly bestowed, without embarrassment to the recipient. We do pride ourselves that our Annual Celebration of the Festival of St. Andrew is the social event of the season.

We, Scots, have a ground conceit of ourselves, but we are wild men, born in clans or tribes, North of the Tweed, or in some shieling in the lales of the Western or Northern Seas. As soon as we can we braw men cross the Tweed or to lands less bleak and bare so that we may earn that which brings food, drink, clothes and creature comforts unobtainable on our native heath, but, once a year, we foregather under the shadow of the white Cross on a blue field, to toast the name of our Patron Saint in our own good wine.

A MILD RACE
Wild men, though we be, we are a mild race, and wish our friends to share in our merrymaking and that is why we have taken so much trouble to bid to this feast, as large a band of Lads and Lassies, as the "Grooms in the Purse" of our large hearted members could accord. We seek not, if the times are lean, if gloom lurks where our cash is stored in cents, nor if trade is what the barometer calls dull, we are the more glad to gather our friends around to join in celebrating our national festival, if thereby we feel we can oust ill, depressions and such like, just as the Auld Wicht in "dear old Scotland" weaves her spell to make crops fair and kine fat in times of bane.

TO GIVE CHEER
A blithe heart, will find a way to give cheer, and help to drive out the black spirits of woe from our midst and enable us to join lustily in the merry dances of our homeland. If grim Wights see nought but noise in the screech of the reels, the skirl of the Pipes and the shout of the Clans, nor joy in the quaffing of the Quach, that is indeed their fault.

We, Scots, are coy, when we talk of our own land for, we love it, but alas for the sake of the world's wealth and health we have to spend so much time out of the Glens, the Glachans and the Vales, that we can scarce be put to blame if we ask our friends to help us to celebrate our National Day, in the far distant lands in which we make our temporary home and I trust nothing but pleasant and happy recollections will remain with you of to-night's festival.

A NEW VERSION
You are all well acquainted with the "Cottars Saturday Night" but let me give you the new version. As I turned off the "High Road," the lane narrowed and the hedges shouldered in about me, trailing brambles clutched at my legs and rasped a protest as I tore myself away. The moon winked at me, as I made my way towards the lighted window which beckoned me.

As I set foot in the yard, a sinking form, came at me from the shed and followed me to the door, sniffing gingerly at my knees. I knocked on the weathered panel, then, receiving no answer, lifted the latch and stepped into a "Cottars Saturday Night."

The lamp on the mantelshelf, aided by the glow of the fire, showed the little household about their hearth. The goodwife, toddler on knee, sat on the far side, her youngest boy sprawled at her feet, chin on hands.

John, the eldest, sat near her, whilst Mary, the daughter, and Sandy, the herd, shared the horse-hair sofa. The father, on whom all eyes were fixed, sat with his back to me, bending over a small table on which had been laid, an open book and some sheets of paper. He did not turn as the latch clicked, only the mother raised an enquiring eye and lifted a hasty finger to lip to beg that silence might be respected.

The little group sat motionless, with an air of great expectancy prevailing as if waiting for something to happen that seemed long in coming. The father cleared his throat, and at last a voice was heard. This is "Glasgow calling" and here is the Sports Bulletin and football results—Aberdeen 2, Motherwell 0.

"Ach!" exclaimed the tense figure, pushing his papers from him in disgust. "There's na cupon burst already." Such is the present day "Cottars Saturday Night."

TRIBUTE TO ANDY DUNCAN
Before concluding there are two matters I would like to refer to. Older members of the Society will, I'm sure, be glad to hear that, we receive good reports of George Duncan who for so many years was responsible for the decorations at our annual festival. I am glad to say his mantle has fallen on his son's shoulders and young Andy is responsible for to-night's decorations and is to be congratulated on the very splendid effects you see here and in the ball rooms upstairs.

PIPE MAJOR MACKIE
Then there is Pipe-Major Mackie, without whose pipes the evening would be incomplete, to him and his merry pipers who do so much to make our reels, strathspeys, etc., go with a swing—that is seldom seen elsewhere—are due our best thanks for their enthusiasm in maintaining the true spirit of our native dances.

I would also like to express to the convenors and members of the various Sub-committees my best thanks for their assistance in making such a success of to-night's function.

SECRETARIES THANKED
Lastly, no words of mine can adequately express my thanks to our Joint Honorary Secretaries, Messrs. E. M. Bryden and D. S. Robb, for their labours in connection with to-night's Ball. Truly theirs is a labour of love and every member of the Society is deeply indebted to them for their untiring efforts to ensure the smooth running of affairs on such a night as this. They are par excellence the ideal secretaries for our Society and I trust they will continue in office for many years to come.

And now, I shall not detain you any longer. Gentlemen, I ask you to be upstanding and drink with me, the Toast of the Evening "to the immortal and pious memory of our Patron Saint," Saint Andrew." (Applause).

WHAT IS THEOSOPHY?

Thought Provoking Address

BY D. K. PAUL

"What is Theosophy?" asked Mr. D. K. Paul last Thursday at the Manuk Lodge, of the Theosophical Society. No atheist, proceeded Mr. Paul, can embrace Theosophy, because Theosophy principally and fundamentally declares the existence of a Great Universal Being which people call by different names—God, the Great Architect, Nature.

God is, says Theosophy, and if He is then He is everything. He must underlie and transcend all and be omniscient, omnipotent and omnipresent. Part of Him is a Great Intelligence which guides the Universes of His Creation. That Guiding Intelligence conceives of great, inalienable Universal Laws, changing in our minds the concept of the Cosmos as chaos to the concept of the Cosmos as Order.

DIVINE WISDOM

Is it possible to learn something of this Divine Wisdom? The ordinary or average man says no. He admits, because he is told so, that God exists, but will not go so far as to say that man can know more of God's Being.

The more advanced man realises that we are all part of God, and that there must be some who are as highly advanced above us as we are above the insects, these beings necessarily acting as the Agents of God's Intelligence by carrying out His Law.

Mr. Paul then spoke for analogy of a General and his army. The ordinary private knew only vaguely of what might be called the guiding intelligence but was directed by the General's agents, his Colonels, Majors, Captains, Sergeants etc.

KNOWLEDGE FROM SOURCE

Thus is it with the Universe. Man cannot obtain his knowledge from the Source as yet. The Source is like the sun and its dazzling all-powerful rays would merely blind. Man may obtain his knowledge from the Agents—the Angels and the Archangels, and of the Divine Wisdom he then possesses is what we call—Theosophy.

The man who possesses knowledge of the Divine Wisdom no matter how fragmentary, soon finds to his joy that he is able better to aid his fellow men. The Wisdom expands with application and a few lives of selfless service raises his consciousness above the human level and he himself becomes divine and joins the Band of Masters who incarnate on this earth only in order to carry out the Plan in God's Mind and which because they are a conscious part of it are able readily to explore.

NOVEL ILLUSTRATION

As a most novel way of illustrating the lecture a Gramophone Recording was played. One was "What is Theosophy?" a clear exposition in beautiful language by the President of the Theosophical Society, Dr. George S. Arundale. A pamphlet with identical wording was distributed and the audience was enabled to enjoy and follow the dynamic speech to the full.

After the record Mr. Paul added that Theosophy as it existed in the Ancient Books of the Egyptians, the Kabbala of the Jews, the Scriptures of the Indians and many other records were kept hidden and secret from the populace. The dangers of overwide publicity were manifold as Initiates possessed great powers over the forces of nature which would be disastrous in the hands of self-seeking men who had evolved but little.

MOTOR MISHAPS

Jumping from a moving lorry No. 3192 at Stanley, Tung Kun, coolie, received injuries and was removed to the Government Civil Hospital. Cham Yee, 52, was also taken to the Government Civil Hospital after he was knocked down by a car in Des Voeux Road West.

"The Dell among the Tallors." "The Black Hair'd Laddie." "The Piper of Drummond." 19. Fox Trot—"O.K. for Sound." 20. Strip the Willow—"Drops o' Brandy." 21. Waltz—"Lovely Lady." Extra. Fox Trot—"Lights Out." * Supper Dances.

Baby's Nannie advised me to use this Talcum Powder

"One day I came home hot and tired after four strenuous sets of tennis—my skin felt hot and prickly all over. Nannie had just finished Baby's evening toilet, and as I was going in to the bathroom, she offered me baby's tin of Cuticura Talcum. I've never known anything so soothing—it is the finest talcum powder I've ever known—after strenuous exercise I ask for no better pick-me-up than a bath finished off with this talcum. The perfume alone made me love it at once—such a delicate, sweet fragrance."

It is because of its fineness and absolute purity that Cuticura Talcum is recommended by doctors and nurses for a baby's sensitive skin. And this is the reason why women find it a joy to use after bathing—or when ever the skin is chafed and feels tender. No other powder is so satiny smooth—it is like a cooling balm on a hot skin. And its sweet, refreshing fragrance perfumes the whole body long afterwards.

Buy a tin today. It is invaluable for every member of the family.

Sold by all Chemists and Stores.

Sample of Cuticura Talcum, Soap and Ointment sent on receipt of 25 cts. Address: Muller & Phipps (Asia) Ltd. P.O. Box 25, HONG KONG.

THOUGHTS ON UMBRELLAS

"It is the habitual carriage of the umbrella," wrote Stevenson, "that is the stamp of 'Respectability.' It was true in his day; it is true in ours. Yet to more than one of us it must have occurred, as Thursday's rain peopled the thoroughfares with a crop of 'triste' black mushrooms, that the umbrella no longer stands quite where it did. Its symbolic value is as high as ever; the trouble is that the thing it symbolizes has declined in our estimation."

More of us are respectable (though perhaps most of us are less acutely, less fanatically, respectable) than was the case in Stevenson's time; more of us shave daily, read, write, wear ties, and speak with what is known as an "educated accent."

Respectability has spread, submerging one class barrier after another and in the process losing, inevitably, many of its austere and once relatively exclusive charms.

It is also one of the drabber virtues. The children of an age of speed do not necessarily aspire to be fast; but, adventure is in the air, and, though it is true that Cowper's readers were once adured to the thin umbrella spread, and range an Indian waste without a tree, the demure contraption is by no means inseparably associated with desert marches.

It stands rather for humdrum occasions, for prudence and routine, and, of course, for bad weather. Tightly furled, it is true, the umbrella achieves a certain elegance and may even recall, to the exceedingly romantic, the sword which in bygone days was not less indispensable nor less decorative. But the analogy only underlines the causes for the poor umbrella's lack of popularity. It is too much unlike a sword; it has no "panache." It may, in its day, have broken a few top hats after the Eton and Harrow match; but its appearance and functions are such that those who were once called "young blades" could scarcely, with impunity, be called "young brooks."

It is impossible in the circumstances not to feel sorry for the umbrella; and we must all feel surlier still when we contemplate its history, which is not less romantic than august. Mr. A. H. Longhurst, the Archaeological Commissioner of Ceylon, has recently given a most scholarly account of that history in a monograph entitled "The Story of the Stupa." From this it appears that the ignoble contrivance with which on Thursday we were poking each other in the eye and irrigating our office floors was, by the Ancient Egyptians as by the Assyrians, regarded as a symbol of authority and power, while in Asia it has been for centuries not only the mark of sovereignty but an object of veneration. In comparatively recent times European travellers, on entering the city of Delhi, were forbidden to follow Cowper's advice lest they should infringe the prerogatives of the Great Mogul. All down the centuries, all over Asia, the umbrella has played a role at once majestic and awful: it has had far-reaching effects upon

MANY ENEMIES IN AUSTRIA

Internal Situation Disclosed

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)
Vienna, Nov. 27.

Speaking on the internal political situation of Austria at Klagenfurt, Chancellor Schuschnigg designated the Communists, National Socialists and ex-members of the disbanded semi-military organisations as Austria's foremost internal enemies.

The activity of the Communists had assumed an increasingly menacing form in recent times, while the National Socialists apparently had expected that the conclusion of the agreement with Germany of July would give them an impetus. This agreement, Schuschnigg declared, was concluded between the two German States, but could have no influence on the domestic affairs of these countries. The only policy which could save Austria was the one, which, without in any way being anti-German, recognised as chief factor the vital interests of the Austrian idea.

Turning to the third enemy, the Chancellor said that the ranks of the disbanded semi-military organisations had contained discontented men enough, but that the Fatherland Front must be open to them, since these men had fought in front line battles in the war.—Transocean News Service.

LIBEL BILL IN FRANCE

Paris, Nov. 28.

The new French Press Bill which was drafted as a result of the press-campaign against the late Minister Salengro, was submitted to Parliament on Thursday and will come up for debate in the Chamber on Tuesday. According to the bill every newspaper publishing enterprise must be registered as a limited company, and the names of the shareholders announced.

An annual list of the managing board and the main shareholders must be published and a financial statement with vouchers must be submitted to the Ministry of Finance for examination of the income. In case of slander or libel in future, the director of the company and the managing board member or the editor will be liable, although if the author of the libellous article is known, he will be held responsible personally, while the member of the company and the managing editor will also be regarded as accessories to the act. The law also prohibits the circulation of certain French newspapers in foreign countries.—Transocean News Service.

PROHIBITION BILL

"Carriage Of Munitions To Spain"

London, Nov. 28.

The President of Board of Trade introduced in the Commons the merchant shipping—Carriage of Munitions to Spain—Bill, the object of which is to prohibit transshipment in, or discharge from, British ships to Spanish territory of weapons and munitions of war. The Bill was formally read the first time.

In view of its urgency, it was announced by the Prime Minister, the House would be asked to pass it through all its stages on Tuesday next.

"UNIFORM" BILL

The Commons then proceeded to a further consideration of the bill prohibiting the wearing of uniforms, in connection with political objects and the maintenance by private persons of associations of military character, and making provision for the preservation of order on the occasion of processions and meetings in public places.—British Wireless.

Buddhist architecture; and when our late King visited India a state umbrella was held over his head on all official occasions.

So perhaps, after all, there is no need to sentimentalize over the umbrella. It has had its day. East of Suez it is still a thing of might and mystery. And, anyhow, it came in very useful during Thursday's drizzle.

MOSES ROSENBERG

About Mr. Moses (Marcel) Rosenberg, Soviet Ambassador to the Marxist Spanish Government, we learn the following:

"Rosenberg is one of the most powerful men in Marxist Spain today. He was transferred to Madrid from the very much more quiet staff of the secretary General of the League of Nations in Geneva. He is called the 'Wizard hunchback' in Spain, and has the reputation of being the real bogey that one fears to find under the bed, when thinking of Bolsheviks. Moses Rosenberg is one of the most capable agents of the Comintern, a fact which assumes significance in regard to his present position. He first sprang into the limelight as Soviet Consul in Danzig, when he did his utmost to stir up trouble for the Poles.

NAVAL BATTLES RECALLED

Hungarian Tribute To Italy

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)
Rome, Nov. 27.

The toasts proposed by Admiral von Horthy, the Hungarian Regent, after the impressive naval parade are significant because von Horthy was the Commander-in-Chief of the Austro-Hungarian Fleet which fought against Italy in the Great War.

After an eulogy of the naval officers who harbour no feelings of hatred against the former opponents, but have become friends in afterlife, Admiral von Horthy went on to declare that following the campaign in the Adriatic the Italian fleet was now operating in a much larger sea and that the navy, which is one "of the strongest in the world," is awaiting, disciplined, but prepared for victory in its future missions in the distant seas.

The King, in answering the toasts, said that no one was better equipped to pass judgment on the Italian navy than Admiral von Horthy, and added that the chivalrous naval battles between the two countries now serve as a band binding them closer together, because of the common recollection of respect and admiration.—Transocean News Service.

SPANISH SITUATION QUESTIONS

Arrest Of Ship By Rebels

EDEN'S ANSWERS

London, Nov. 25.
Several questions regarding the situation in Spain were answered by the Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden in the Commons this afternoon. He stated that the proposed ban on the conveyance of war material to Spain by British vessels, would not apply to commodities such as foodstuffs and coal.

When asked about the specific breaches of the Non-Intervention Pact, Mr. Eden said there was certain evidence of arms having been supplied to Spain by various countries since October 15 and this information, so far as they had been able to substantiate it, had been placed before the Non-Intervention Committee.

Referring to the report of an arrest by the Spanish rebel warships of the Norwegian vessels, "Laska," Mr. Eden said he understood the master of the ship had informed the Naval authorities at Gibraltar, that on November 15 he was stopped and interrogated by two Spanish armed trawlers about ten miles off Cape Finisterre and ordered to proceed in company with one of them to Vigo.

The Master refused on the ground that he was outside territorial waters. An armed guard was placed on board the Norwegian ship and she was taken to Vigo where a cargo of seed potatoes consigned to the Agricultural Department of the Spanish Government was confiscated.

The ship is now at Gibraltar awaiting instructions.—British Wireless.

TORPEDO INCIDENT

London, Nov. 25.

The First Lord of Admiralty, Sir Samuel Hoare in reply to a question in the House stated that reports received from H.M.S. "Glow-worm" indicated that the Spanish Government warship, "Miguel de Cervantes," was damaged at the entrance to the Cartagena Harbour on November 22, and that damage was consistent with a torpedo attack.

Mr. Noel Baker Labour referred to reports that the Spanish Government had obtained pieces of the torpedo which had caused the damage and asked if it was not of vital interest to the powers, including Britain, that the facts of this case should be established.

Sir Samuel Hoare replied: "It is of vital interest to the British Government that we should not interfere." "I have no information to justify by expressing any opinion about the matter."—British Wireless.

EXTENSIVE ASSISTANCE TO BELLIGERENTS NON-INTERVENTION IN SPAIN NOT OBSERVED

Committee Agree On Scheme Of Control

London, November 27. During the debate in the House of Lords last night on the situation in Spain, Lord Cecil said there could be no doubt that extensive assistance had been given by outside countries to both sides to the dispute. The danger of some incident made him feel extremely anxious.

He also asked for information regarding the newspaper report of a most formidable position in Majorca which was said to be controlled by the Italian Government.

ALLEGED ITALIAN BARGAIN

Lord Plymouth replying said that His Majesty's Government had been aware for some time that breaches of the non-intervention agreement had been committed by more than one signatory, but it was extremely difficult definitely to prove those breaches. The Government had sent on what evidence they had been able to substantiate to the Non-intervention Committee which in due course would examine it.

The Government were collaborating in every possible effort to make the work of the Committee more effective. A scheme of control and supervision had been agreed to in principle by the Committee, but as the scheme is not yet quite complete no approach had been made to the parties in Spain.

ITALIAN ASSURANCES

Lord Plymouth said he was not in a position to confirm or contradict the information about Majorca.

There had been suspicions on various sides that it was the intention of the Italian Government probably by bargaining with General Franco to take over one or more of the islands in the Balearics group. On several occasions in recent months, however, the Italian Government had given the British Government full assurances as to the absence of any Italian intentions in regard to the Balearics. Only a few days ago the head of the Italian Government had repeated these assurances in an interview with a British press correspondent.

With regard to mediation, he regretted there was at present little possibility for reconciliation, and the present moment was therefore inopportune for a general offer of mediation.

These attacks were repulsed by the Legionaries with customary heavy losses for the enemy, while the artillery kept the northern suburb of Cuatro Caminos under heavy fire.

GEN. KLEBER'S OPINION

Government Victory By End Of Year

Madrid, Nov. 27.

Victory for the Government forces by the end of this year is predicted by General Emilio Kleber who commands the international force. Kleber, who is a naturalised Canadian, in the early fifties, of mixed Franco-German extraction, fought in the Great War and then joined the White Russian army.

Kleber asserts that the enemy is fighting with a great superiority of war material which the government forces lack, but they were taught a sharp lesson on arriving at the gates of Madrid.

The situation around Madrid is a question of nerves, and he anticipates that during the next few days the enemy will find themselves incapable of retaining control over the reckless troops.

Furthermore he says the Government's victorious goal must be gained by a display of more confidence, more pluck, and especially greater activity on all fronts.

GREAT OUTCRY IN FRANCE

German-Japanese Agreement

Paris, Nov. 28.

To judge by the tone of the morning papers Paris has been thrown into very ill humour by the conclusion of the German-Japanese pact, some of the papers declaring that it is a military pact camouflaged as a mere defensive measure, directed against Soviet Russia and Communist propaganda. The newspapers bristle with allusions to other secret pacts, and complain that this has all been done behind the backs of the democratic Governments.

In official circles on Wednesday the comment on the agreement was that judgement on such a momentous issue needed time, and no verdict would be possible until all implications would be evident. But at the moment the most important fact was that the agreement was not concluded within the framework of the League of Nations.

As was to have been expected the Communist and Socialist press are naturally loudest in condemning the agreement, lock, stock and barrel. The "Humanite" finds everything quite clear, the agreement represents an alliance against Soviet Russia, France and England and a peril to peace and democracy. The "Populaire" follows the same line. The bourgeois press is filled with mistrust, newspapers like "Le Journal" and "Figaro," which otherwise recognise the Communist peril are very clearly full of apprehension and doubt. The "Journal" writes: "Is this really the appropriate way of defending the world against the Red peril?" The "Figaro" declares that it is not a case of ideological agreement, but of a political pact under a very estimable form. "But on the other hand, we now enter a period of world politics which have a merit of clearness."

Dressed in their old Cossack uniforms, which were banned until last year because of the reluctance of the Cossacks to surrender to the revolutionaries after the downfall of the Czar, and because of their bloody resistance to the militant Communists who hated the Cossacks as the "servants of the Czar," and brandishing their sabres, the fierce men of the Don country completely captured the session.

"We are ready to help again at any moment to crush a Fascist enemy," the spokesman of the Cossacks declared.

GERMAN-JAPANESE AGREEMENT

LENGTHY DISCUSSION BY NEWSPAPERS

Italian Denial Of Later Adherence

London, November 27. The German-Japanese agreement continues to figure largely in all the papers. The "Times" devotes three columns to the subject giving prominence to Japanese press fears that international complications, particularly British suspicions, if not removed beforehand, may outweigh the benefits of the anti-Communist crusade.

The "Times" also gives prominence to Poland's opposition to divide Europe into antagonistic blocs and Italy's steadfast denial of any likelihood that she will join the pact.

The Rumanian Foreign Minister, M. Victor Antonescu, who is generally regarded as the spokesman of the Little Entente, emphasises that Rumania will not join any anti-Soviet pact.

The Berlin correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" says that the German Foreign Office has entirely washed its hands of the pact as it is going beyond the realm of diplomacy. It was Chancellor Hitler's and Herr von Ribbentrop's exclusive affair.

The "Daily Telegraph" believes that the Japanese and German Air Ministries are closely collaborating and a constant exchange of army officers is being made.

The "Spectator" says that the whole agreement is couched in language so vague, and obviously the question of importance is not what the published text means but what underlies it.

CITY OPINION

A summary of representative opinions in the City obtained by Reuter shows there was considerable anxiety yesterday, and to-day a more moderate view prevails.

A leading industrialist equally friendly to China and Japan said: "I am neither surprised nor alarmed. The situations of Japan and Germany are very similar in respect of political isolation, hatred of Bolshevism, and need of raw materials and exports. They naturally draw together. There is no need for alarm if British policy shows comprehension of Japan's economic needs."

BRITISH VIEW

On the other hand it is understood that British official circles view the pact with considerable misgiving.

It is learnt that the Russians long anticipated the pact and told other delegates to the Institute of Pacific Relations conference at Yosemite in August that it is coming.

VANISHING "GEORGE" ISSUES

Suggestions for a Coronation issue of postage stamps are now under consideration by the Postmaster-General, while the general design of the King Edward issue is also receiving attention, states "The Times".

As to the King Edward stamps, it is still uncertain whether the present photographic design is to stay. A decision will be taken at an early date.

A BIG DEMAND

At the moment there is a world boom in British stamps, due to the gradual change-over from those of George V. to Edward VIII. Already more than half of the letters posted daily bear the new stamps, and before Christmas the appearance of the 1d. "George" will be comparatively rare.

"All 'George' stamps of the 1d., 1d., and 1d. denominations have now been issued," an official stated. "We still have large stocks of the 'George' 2d. stamps, and these are being put out with the 'Edward' 2d. issue, the latter being supplied on demand."

"Books of the new stamps are also going into circulation. There will be no fixed date for their general release, as a good stock of the 'George' books must be disposed of in fairness to advertisers in them. It is too early to say anything of the issue of stamps of higher denominations, but their issue will be a gradual process when problems of demand and supply, and of design, are settled.

"Penny and halfpenny roll-stamps of the late King will, however, be available for some months yet, as good stocks remain. These stamps are printed with a special margin, in numbers of 483, 960, and 1920 to the roll, and undoubtedly there are still considerable supplies with big offices as well as in the post office selling machines."

JUBILEE YEAR SALES

"In an average year we issue 7,000,000,000 single stamps, and Jubilee year saw an increase to 7,200,000,000. Sales this year will show an even greater increase. Thirty million books of stamps are made up every year, while more than 800,000 rolls of stamps are turned out."

"The stamp issuing department sell direct to authorised dealers in large quantities and many thousands pounds worth of the old as well as the new stamps have been sent abroad. There is a keen demand at present for the 'Morocco' overprint of King Edward. Dealers are buying in big quantities, and are not making the mistake they did with the 'Morocco' overprint Silver Jubilee issue, which they did not purchase so readily. As a result these stamps are now comparatively rare."

"Another point of interest to the stamp collector is that we are gradually changing the watermark of the Postage Due stamps from 'G.V.R.' to 'E.R.'"

Philatelists continue to look with scant success for faults in the printing of British stamps. The proportion of imperfect stamps that escape detection at source is infinitesimal, while paper wastage is slight.

HOCKEY

Royal Navy Bow To Punjab

FAST GAME

Lacking in speed and accuracy with the stick, the Royal Navy lost to the Punjab Regiment in a fast and exciting hockey match by four clear goals. The game was played on the Marina ground, Kowloon, yesterday afternoon.

Within the first minute of the first half the Punjab netted through Afzar Khan, who played brilliantly at inside left.

Throughout the whole of the game both teams were playing with fine combination, but the Punjab Regiment were slightly the better. The second goal for the winners was scored just before the half-time whistle by Lt. Gender playing centre forward.

SECOND HALF

In the second half the game began with another goal within a minute of the whistle by Lt. Gender after a struggle in the goal mouth.

The fourth goal was netted by Afzar Khan five minutes before the final whistle.

At times the game was very patchy, causing the whistle to be blown too often, especially through the faults of the winners.

Although the Navy lost, they tried hard but were unable to penetrate a sound defence.

DAMAGE TO ROAD

Appearing on remand before Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday, charged with damaging the road near Deep Water Bay, Chan Nam, aged 32, and Lam Hing, aged 44, both unemployed, were further remanded. Sergeant Brown, said the repairs to the road, which defendants were now ordered to do, would take at least another two days. Defendants were arrested when they were caught digging up the road for old cable.

GOATS' CARCASSES

A fine of $25, or a month's hard labour each, was imposed by Mr. W. Schofield at the Central Magistracy yesterday when Ng Kong, aged 39, and Li Shing, aged 48, appeared on a charge of possession of two goats' carcasses, and two parts of a dead goat. Inspector M. H. Hourihan produced a certificate from the Colonial Veterinary Surgeon and said the animals had apparently died from fever. His Worship ordered that the meat be destroyed.

TALLON BEHIND THE STICKS

Brisbane, Nov. 27.

In the four-day match commenced to-day, M.C.C. were all out for 215 and Queensland at close of play had scored 71 runs without losing any wickets.

The M.C.C. had 193 for 4, but they lost the remaining six batsmen for a paltry 22 runs.

Leyland scored 98 in 159 minutes during which he hit sixteen boundaries. With Ames he added 107 for the fourth wicket. Ames 41, Hammond 36, and Barnett 20 were the only other batsmen to reach double figures.

The wicket was the fastest of the tour so far. Allen, the home team's fast bowler, took four wickets for 27. The fielding was excellent. Fishlock and Farnes were run out. Tallon kept wicket very well, showing an improvement from the Australian eleven, and he stumped Verity, besides catching Hammond and Robins. Reuter.

TO GET RID OF STOMACH TROUBLES

An English Doctor
writes:—

"I find that 'Bisurated' Magnesia taken after most of my meals is the only thing that keeps me free from pain and discomfort, and I take it regularly. I often prescribe it for my patients, and have had very good results."
(Signed) Dr. H. G. M.A., M.R.C.S., L.R.C.P.

THE English doctor is the most conservative medical man in the world, and when he not only recommends but personally uses a remedy there can be no more convincing proof of its efficacy. This doctor is but one of many who constantly advise the use of 'Bisurated' Magnesia in all cases of indigestion. Most stomach trouble is caused by acidity, and the reason why 'Bisurated' Magnesia gives quick relief is that it instantly neutralises excess acid and soothes, heals and strengthens the inflamed stomach lining. Nothing could be simpler, safer or surer. If you suffer with indigestion or stomach disorder of any kind put your faith in European science and make an end of your troubles by taking 'Bisurated' Magnesia after eating or whenever pain is felt.

The Triangular Tournament will thus commence on December 5, and not as previously published. The Navy has not yet been seen at full strength this season, and with their full side out on December 5 it is expected that the game will be keen and close and that some good football will be seen.

PHILIPPINE MINING NEWS

"The production of Big Wedge, operated by Atok Gold Mining Company, for the month of October amounted to P103,167.00 from 3,321 tons of ore. Extraction was 92.7 per cent. Gross value per ton of ore P32.48, states the "Manila Bulletin".

Cost statement for October is not yet available but September costs which are comparable were: milling P2.76, mining P5.33 and total cost of P10.17 per ton of ore produced.

"Mine development for the month totalled 1057 feet. Only 124 feet of that amount can be credited to the Muyot Drain Tunnel, due to a heavy flow of water encountered early in the month. Work was suspended to permit the water to drain off. The Bodega Drive was advanced 422 feet during the month (almost a record). Pump troubles reduced the footage in the Broadway shaft to only 22 feet. All other development faces were advanced as per schedule.

"A diamond drill hole was put down 375 feet on the Frank vein which indicated commercial ore 120 feet below present workings. Additional holes will be put down to verify the findings of the first hole.

"Construction work has been started on the 150-ton flotation unit which is to be added to our present cyanide plant for treatment of the base ores from the

Broadway and Frank veins. Equipment for this plant consisting of six 36" Ferguson flotation cells, a Door thickener and a 5 x 6 foot Oliver filter together with the necessary tanks, has all been ordered. It is hoped to have this plant in operation soon after the first of the year."

FISHERMEN FORM ASSOCIATION

It is well-known that fish is an important product of Hong Kong and its surrounding waters, and that those who earn their living by fishing number 100,000.

These hardy toilers of the sea use primitive methods and ordinary junk in catching fish in the weather, but cannot compete with the Japanese fishermen who use steam trawlers and do not fear typhoons or rough weather, and fish throughout the year.

Consequently, the poor Chinese fishermen are greatly handicapped, and have been practically driven off the fishing fields by Japanese

U.S. STRIKE AFFECTS FAR EAST

It is reported that the strike of the American seamen is greatly affecting the business and trade of the Far East.

There is a great dearth in American goods, and supplies cannot meet the demand, and consequently, prices are soaring.

Superior flour is now $5.30 per bag, and low grade $4.34 per bag. American fruits have also greatly increased in price. Oranges, which were formerly $2.00 per case, are now sold at $3.00 per case, and apples which were sold at $3 per case are now $12 per case.

Passengers, who do not patronize Japanese steamers, now proceed to Vancouver, Canada, by railway, and take passage to Hong Kong and the Far East by the steamers of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company Limited.

TRUTH ABOUT THE TRANS-SIBERIAN

Record Of A Nightmare Journey

(BY LUCIUS O'B. CONOLLY)

(Governing Director of the Australian "A and G" News Service, and one of the leading commentators on foreign travel for the Australian Broadcasting Commission.)

To those who say that travelling by the Trans-Siberian Railway is good, I say, bluntly, they lie.

Between Manchouli, where I boarded the Trans-Siberian train, and Negoro, where I thankfully left it, were seven days and seven nights of dirt, discomfort, and discourtesy such as I had never experienced before, and which I certainly hope I shall never experience again. The journey is a nightmare. The train is indescribably filthy. The food provided is often, literally, bad, and always disgustingly served. The seating and sleeping accommodation for the great bulk of the passengers is uncomfortable and unclean. The bedding is inadequate. The service, where it exists at all, is crude, uncouth, and often deliberately offensive.

The restaurant-car staff consists of a cook and two assistant cooks, a head waiter, a waiter, two female attendants, and a scullery-maid; and from eight o'clock in the morning to eleven o'clock at night that staff is worked to death. They are worked so hard that they never have time to wash their hands or faces. Certainly they never have time to ever wash out the kitchen or the kitchen utensils or properly to wash the tableware used by the passengers.

To reach the dining-car from my compartment I had to pass the kitchen. Its door was always open, and I used to try not to look inside; but my eyes, drawn by some morbid, horrid fascination, always took a hasty glance; and always I was sorry.

No witches' kitchen could equal, for sheer frightfulness, that dreadful place, where hellish brews were concocted and offered at ruinous prices to the Soviet's paying guests. On the left, under the steaming, grease-bespattered windows, a waist-high bench ran the whole length of the kitchen. Here the cooks, in indescribably filthy clothes, forced loathsome dollops of flaccid meat through rusty mincing machines, pounded dark, unwholesome-looking dough into brick-like bread, and did all the dark mysteries of their craft, while they spat and sweated and stank in an unventilated hole.

On the right, running parallel with the mixing bench, a squat black stove, thick with the caked and baked dirt of years, belched black greasy smoke from every joint, polluting the air of all carriages in its rear, and even penetrating forward, where it added its stench to the ghastly effluvia emanating from the packed masses of unwashed humanity, stale food, bad vodka, and unspeakable beer in the hermetically-sealed dining-car.

If my description of the bench and stove on the Trans-Siberian train fills you with any desire to travel on that route, let me add that the narrow strip of floor between the depository of all the scraps and offal of the kitchen. There it is thrown, and there it stays. Should a piece of food intended for the pot fall on the floor, it is retrieved, but that is all.

And what of the great open spaces, through which the "Express" crawls, bumps and staggers on its way? I will tell you. Left to themselves, the great open spaces are fine! Not even the Bolsheviks can mar the beauty of the open steppes, or mess up the majesty of, pine and birch-clad hills. But stop at a station while the train gets up steam for another dash (at thirty miles an hour) across the plains. There is plenty of time, twenty minutes is the average halt; let us walk a little way, and see the town and the happy, joyous, cultured comrades of the U.S.S.R.

The chances are that the station, viewed from the train, will look quite clean. Fresh distemper colours it. A few flowers in boxes brighten the foreground. The po-

Seaman W45 Wong Tak—For zeal and courage in mounting guard over a pirate boat at Kong Mun Pass on April 12, 1934.

THOSE PRESENT

Among those present to witness the ceremony were the Hon. Mr. R. A. C. North (Secretary for Chinese Affairs), Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall, Mrs. T. H. King, Mr. C. G. Perdue, Deputy Inspector General of Police; Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. T. Murphy, Mr. A. R. S. Major, Mrs. W. P. Thompson, Mrs. L. H. C. Caldwell, Mrs. P. Grant, Mrs. R. H. E. Marks, Mrs. J. Murphy, Mr. Hampshire, Messrs. Wong Tung, Li Po Kwa, Tam Wun Tong, Ng Yu Wan, Li Yau Tsun, Tang Shiu Kin.

and legs are wrapped in tattered sackings. His clothes are in rags. There are gaps in the rags, where the scurried skin shows through. We give him a coin. He mumbles thanks. Into his eyes there comes an almost human look. We go back to the comparative cleanliness and cheerfulness of the train.

And so the trip goes on. Station after station, and behind each show window, dirt, distress, despair. It comes to us that there is something oddly familiar about these people—something in their eyes—they are all the same.

So, for once, the truth is told about Siberia. And for one reason, and one only, the trip has a value. Have you Communitarian leanings, Brother? Do you believe in the happy, joyous, cultured lives led by the Comrades of the U.S.S.R.? Then travel by the Trans-Siberian! See for yourself if I have distorted one fact, exaggerated one word! Here is another truth. Seventeen years ago those Russian Comrades behaved like wild dogs. Now they are living in the kennel that, with their own paws they built. (The "London Morning Post.")

Mrs. Fringle is seen in the foreground, chatting with friends. Some idea of the crowd that attended the race meeting on Saturday may be gauged from those in the background.
